MFA Announces Inaugural European Conference Global Summit 2015 scheduled for October 27 in London

WASHINGTON – Managed Funds Association (MFA) today announced the date for Global Summit 2015, the Association’s inaugural European Conference. The conference will broaden awareness of the important role alternative investments play in the European Union and help fund managers navigate evolving U.S. and EU regulatory frameworks.

“As the global voice for the alternative investment industry and its investors, MFA is excited to announce our upcoming Global Summit,” MFA President and CEO Richard H. Baker said. “This conference will provide a focused day of content designed to help managers gain clarity on what they need to know about investing in U.S. capital markets, advising U.S.-based institutional investors about investing in their funds, and complying with key differences in U.S. and global regulations.”

Confirmed speakers include ESMA Executive Director Verena Ross, Securities and Exchange Commission Office of International Affairs Director Paul A. Leder, Commodity Futures Trading Commission Division of Market Oversight Director Vincent McGonagle, Financial Conduct Authority Head of OTC Derivatives and Post-Trade Policy Thomas Springbett and others. Large U.S. institutional investors are also among the confirmed attendees.

Delegates will discuss a variety of timely global operational, regulatory and compliance issues for the industry. Each segment of the conference will deliver practical advice that managers can implement immediately within their businesses, including the latest on U.S. and EU tax and regulatory compliance, 40ACT and UCITS funds, capital and financing charges, marketing across and within various jurisdictions, derivatives transactions and other topics central to fund managers and their investors.
